

New Trioliet distribution center North America

4 July 2017 by Trioliet

With the continued growth of the North American business and demand for replacement parts, Trioliet has seen the need to significantly increase the size of the spare parts warehouse in Mineral Point Wisconsin. Since starting in North America in 2000, Trioliet has seen the demand for its products grow each year. Starting with parts distributed by a dealer then in a rented facility that was later purchased and expanded Trioliet has seen the need for more parts stock in North America.

The new facility will be located in Mineral Point Wisconsin and consist of a 10,000 square foot warehouse facility with room to grow on the 10 acre site. The new facility will allow for all the parts to be stored indoors and allow shipping containers and trucks to be unloaded and loaded without having to deal with the weather. In addition to parts, this new larger facility will also allow us to stock more new units that can then be distributed to dealers throughout North America. "Being able to supply our customers with the parts they need in a timely basis is very important to Trioliet!" stated Mark Kroese Export Manager for North America.
