

Introducing Raimondi's new Chairman

14 January 2014 by Raimondi Cranes

Our new owner and Chairman, His Royal Highness Prince Khaled bin Alwaleed Al Saud recently visited Raimondi Cranes' factories in order to discuss major expansion plans to the staff.

You may have already heard or read rumours or stories of this in the press, but we are most proud to confirm it to you ourselves.

Regarding the recent visit to the Raimondi Cranes S.p.A. premises, the Management and staff of our company enjoyed the opportunity to listen and have a meaningful dialogue with our new owner and chairman, His Royal Highness, Prince Khaled bin Alwaleed Al Saud, about all the perspectives and challenges opening up to Raimondi with the recent change in ownership and the new plans for the company.

Besides the obvious importance and formality of such visit, it was an excellent opportunity for all in Raimondi to be personally acquainted with their Chairman and to hear directly from him many comments related to his impressions and personal thoughts relative to why his new acquisition and position was particularly special to him. The meeting allowed for active participation, all of which made the occasion not only memorable but useful for all.

Source: RAIMONDI CRANES S.p.A.