

ACCESUS

IMAGE SOURCE: ANMOPYC, ACCESUS

Accesus launches its new website

27 July 2026 by Anmopyc

- Accesus has launched a new, unified website at accesus.es that combines the distributor store and main site for seamless user experience.
- The redesigned site features improved navigation, allowing users to find information within three clicks and access product documentation easily.
- The website is fully multilingual, supporting Spanish, English, French, Portuguese, and Italian to better serve international partners.
- Accesus plans continuous updates with new content, improved product sheets, and enhanced project visibility to support users over time.

Accesus has been working for over 15 years to improve their products, bringing people closer to a safer and more reliable work environment. Their way of being has driven them to want to offer more services, more options, and better products.

Today, they are taking a step forward by offering a new version of their website. More accessible and with better navigation options.

Integrated store for distributors

Almost a year ago, Accesus launched their first version of the website for distributors. Thanks to it, hundreds of partners have been able to place their orders and track them at any time of day. The web never sleeps.

However, they felt that switching between the two websites was a bit tedious. So, they have unified the experience in one place. You will no longer have to learn different addresses. One domain for everything, accesus.es.

Accessibility improvements

They were very aware that the previous version of our site was improvable. Finding something seemed complicated, so this new version, which unifies our entire essence, allows you to navigate between sections in a simple way, so that finding something does not require more than 3 mouse clicks. They have put a lot of effort into it.

Now you will have the online store differentiated from the suspended platforms section, as well as catalogs, projects, and the sectors where we operate. Each product or machine sheet has visible documentation, without having to navigate through different sections.

Similarly, they have interconnected everything to make it easy to see at a glance all the elements that interact with each other (sectors, projects, news, epis, machinery).

A multilingual website

Within that concern to improve and offer a better experience, they have focused on making it easy for our partners beyond Spain. That's why the website is completely multilingual and it is possible to navigate, buy, request information, and understand any corner in several languages: Spanish, English, French, Portuguese and Italian.

Is this the end?

Of course not; Accesus will continue to add new and fresh content to help you in your daily life. Improving product sheets, machines, linking and giving voice to new projects and much more. This is just the beginning.

Source: ANMOPYC